The accomplished historian, Earl Stan-hope, is one of the finest looking men in the House of Lords. He is of medium height, has iron gray hair carelessly dis-posed, regular features, a kind blue eye, red face, and a manner which is concilia-tory and high-toned. He is a constant atpens to involve questions of history. He is known in this country as having had a long discussion with Dr. Jared Sparks, on some points of revolutionary history. As a speaker he is mild and courteous, rathe expressing his ideas carries the conviction of sincerity, while yet he seldom or never ciples out of him, and to have converted him to Toryism. At all events, he is now a devoted follower of Lord Derby.
